

Australian Regional Tourism Community

Every good online community requires a set of rules to maintain integrity and to best serve the needs of members, and the Australian Regional Tourism Community is no different.

The purpose of the community is to end isolation and facilitate connectivity in regional destinations. Connecting with like-minded tourism professionals enables us to share knowledge and advice, and to collaborate on seeking best practice solutions to common challenges.

Forum Rules

As a valued member of the community, we request that all members abide by the following rules.

1. To enhance the experience by other community members, all users must upload a profile image. Where this is not available, a company logo may be supplied in its place.
2. Offensive language, provoking or criticising an individual or organisation will not be tolerated.
3. The selling of goods and services of any type what so ever, including linking to your business website or social channels, within a group forum is prohibited. The group “professional services” has been created for this reason. You are free to create a topic thread and offer your goods and services here.
4. Please refrain from tagging or direct messaging another member to sell goods or services unless that member has specifically invited you to do so.

Failure to follow the Australian Regional Tourism Community rules will result in one warning from the community moderator. A second breach in rules will be followed by removal from the community. All discipline action is at the discretion of the ART Board. In this instance, no membership fees will be refunded.

If you find yourself receiving unsolicited private messages, please contact the community moderator.

Please enjoy your experience engaging with the Australian Regional Community. ART welcome your feedback to enhance the user experience.
